DETAILED ACTION

This application was filed 7 August 2003 and is a CON of PCT/FR02/00571 (filed 2/14/2002) which claims priority to FR 01/02010 and FR 01/05206. Claims 1-9 are before the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 2001011042 (see abstract) and Clark (CA 114:164084).

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

JP teaches a method for making dimethylbutyl thiazolidinedione from dimethylbutylidene thiazolidinedione using a catalyst and acetic acid. Clark teaches making dihydrophenylmethyl-benzopyran-6-yl methyl thiazolidinedione from dihydrophenylmethyl-benzopyran-6-yl methylene thiazolidinedione using a catalyst and acetic acid.

The difference between both JP and Clark and the instantly claimed process is the use of acetic acid in the place of formic acid.

The ordinary artisan understands that formic acid and acetic acid have very little structural difference (HC(O)OH for formic acid and $\text{CH}_3\text{C(O)OH}$ for acetic acid) and these two acids have very similar pKa numbers. Knowing this, these two acids would be interchangeable in a reaction with the expectation of getting the same result.

One of ordinary skill in the art would be motivated by the knowledge that formic acid and acetic acid have very little structural difference and very similar pKa numbers to change a known reaction using acetic acid to the same reaction using formic acid with the reasonable expectation of getting the same product. Rationale: Formic acid and acetic acids are very similar in structure and in reactivity (pKa). Knowing this, formic acid and acetic acid would be expected to react the same way in the same reaction.
